Johnson Meets With M'Namara

World Tension, Defense, Budget Are Discussed

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson jumped Monday into a round of Cabinet-level conferences, the first with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara — on trouble spots around the globe, national defense and the budget.

These pose interlocking problems and a need for post-election stock-taking.

Points of tension in the world have an impact on America's defense plans. Since defense spending accounts for about half the total spending, this has a vital effect on the budget. And Johnson wants to hold the budget below the $100-billion mark for the second year in a row.

Vance Sits In

McNamara flew to the LBJ Ranch from Washington Monday, accompanied by Deputy Secretary Cyrus Vance, to help tackle some of the current and coming questions confronting the President.

It's standard procedure for Johnson to hop into a car or golf cart and take a visitor on a bit of a tour of the ranch. And soon after McNamara arrived, a white golf cart roamed down the road in front of the ranch house and back with a couple of occupants who looked at long range like a president and cabinet member.

The secretary will stay overnight and then sit in on a second meeting. For that one, Secretary of State Dean Rusk is arriving in the morning, along with McGeorge Bundy, Johnson's chief adviser on international security affairs.

No Formal Agenda

The Texas White House said additional Cabinet members will be coming in later, probably Wednesday. The Johnsons are entertaining President-elect Gustavo Diaz Ordaz of Mexico at the ranch on Thursday and Friday.

In advance of McNamara's arrival, acting White House press secretary Malcolm Kilduff said the talks at the ranch, 15 miles west of here in the Texas hill country, would "run the whole gamut of problems, including the budget." He said there is no formal agenda.

Calif. Woman Believed Dead In Mudslides

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Heavy rainfall from a late-arriving Pacific storm triggered mudslides in several fire-denuded areas of Southern California Monday.

More than a dozen homes were damaged by the flowing mud and debris, and a housewife was believed to have been swept by her death in nearby Burbank. She disappeared after four feet of mud poured into her home.

The storm brought an inch of rain to Santa Barbara County and 77 of an inch in downtown Los Angeles. In some areas, streams overflowed their banks and swept down hillsides burned over by brush fires last September.

A dramatic but relatively harmless tornado-type disturbance hit the El Segundo district southwest of here. The twisting rain squall whipped tarpaper from roofs, smashed carports, broke windows in two areas and uprooted trees.

Missing in Burbank was Mrs. Aimee Miller. Police said she disappeared after the heavy showers loosened soil on a fire-swept hillside on Country Club Drive.

When the mud and debris began pouring into the Miller home, William A. Miller and his daughter, Meredith, 17, fled — shouting for Mrs. Miller to join them.

The teen-ager climbed to higher ground. Her father was found later sitting on the hood of his automobile in a catch basin below the house.

HAS TAX TROUBLE — Folk singer Joan Baez, of Carmel, Calif., insists she will continue her fight against war and armament by not paying 60 per cent of her income tax. The Internal Revenue Service has filed a $50,182 lien against her for non-payment of 1963 income taxes. A pacifist, Miss Baez has said she would pay only 40 per cent of her taxes. LBJ, Romney Try To Pour Oil On GOP Waters

WASHINGTON (AP) — A couple of winners—one from each party — tried Monday to pour oil on the troubled Republican waters.

President Johnson praised his Republican Cabinet members and said the GOP has an important and vital role to play in national life.

Gov. George Romney of Michigan, who survived the Democratic landslide spearheaded by Johnson, implied that the Republican Governors Association should not concern itself with the future of GOP National Chairman Dean Burch.

The comments came as Republicans continued to assess the results of last Tuesday's election. In an Associated Press survey of state GOP leaders, a good many suggested that Sen. Barry Goldwater—and his personal choice for chairman, Burch—should give up leadership of the Republican party. Goldwater carried only six states.

And many of these same leaders predicted a greater role in the party for former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the 1960 GOP presidential nominee.

The President's comments came in a copyright interview in U.S. News & World Report. He expressed pride in the work of such Cabinet members as Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon and Attorney General John Edgar Hoover. He called them "good Republicans and good Americans."

And, said Johnson, "I was very proud during the campaign to have the active support of four former members of the Cabinet under President Eisenhower."

"I anticipate that some of those Republicans who supported us during the campaign will resume an active role in leading the Republican party on a constructive course to maintain the bipartisanship in government which is so essential to America's success in all fields," Johnson said.

Romney told a news conference Monday that Burch's future as national chairman "is the direct responsibility of the national committee—not the Republican Governors Association."

But he said the governors probably "could have a direct influence in the situation."

New Bridge Closed For Hour By Cows

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind. (AP) — The new John F. Kennedy Bridge that carries Interstate 65 traffic over the Ohio River between Jeffersonville and Louisville, Ky., was closed for an hour Monday because too many cows were wandering about the structure.

A truck carrying the cows turned over on the Louisville side. It took police an hour to round up the strays and remove those that were injured.

Seven-Vote Edge Upholds Steel Pledge

Move To Condemn Nationalization Plan Defeated, 307-300

LONDON (AP) — Britain's new Labor government survived its first big parliamentary battle Monday night by a margin of seven votes.

Nine Laborite legislators — delayed by fog — made a dramatic dash from Scotland to help turn aside a slashing Conservative attack on Labor's pledge to nationalize the steel industry.

307 To 300 Vote

The vote in the House of Commons was 307-300 against a Conservative motion describing steel nationalization as "irrelevant to the modernization of Britain and damaging to the national economy."

Labor's normal thin majority in the House of Commons is five.

The majority of seven was something of a surprise. With two Labor members ill, it could have been as low as three.

But the size of the vote indicated a fair proportion of absentees on both sides of the 630-member House.

Not Vote On Bill

The splinter Liberal party, committed against steel nationalization or alternatively willing to accept some compromise form of partial public ownership, voted against the Labor government.

This was not a vote on a bill but only on a motion condemning a policy outlined in the queen's speech which opened Parliament last week.

Many labor MPs felt that a defeat would not necessarily have meant resignation by Prime Minister Harold Wilson's government. But large-scale defections from Labor ranks would have brought it down.

Denial Follows Sudanese Coup Attempt Report

CAIRO, U.A.R. (UPI)—New Sudanese Premier Sirr-el-khatib Khalifa Monday night denied a report by his own state radio that army units were trying to overthrow his 10-day-old civilian government.

El Khalifa spoke to a confused nation several hours after Omdurman, the state radio, repeatedly broadcast a statement that tank corps and maintenance corps units had moved out of their barracks to carry out a "reactionary coup" against the government.

The original statement broadcast by the radio was attributed to the National Front, a body which includes representatives of all political parties in the Sudan as well as progressive professional and workers groups.

The front supports the new government sworn in to replace the military junta which fell last month after 10 days of bloody rioting which killed at least 40 persons.

Mission Schema Turned Down By Vatican Council

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Prelates of the Vatican Ecumenical Council voted Monday for a full debate on an abbreviated set of propositions, or statements, on the importance of missionary work in the Church. The pontiff himself was present for the start as debate last Friday in St. Peter's to show his special interest.

Never before had he attended a council working session. Pope Paul had said there was need for some improvement in the schema, but it also contained much to be praised and should gain easy approval.

Cardinals, archbishops and bishops arose one after the other, however, to attack the present text as lacking in zeal and as being too vague and too so-called radioactivity brief.

High Court Erases Juror Color Line

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court put into effect Monday a justice's statement of 14 years ago that juries must be selected without any regard to color — Negroes cannot be intentionally included or excluded.

The tribunal did so in refusing to hear an appeal from a lower federal court ruling that Louisiana violated the rights of Woodman J. Collins, a Negro, in the selection of a jury in the selection of a white woman was selected from a panel of 20 with six Negroes purposely included.

In a relatively light day of decisions, the court agreed to sentences to execution for the rape of Gladys E. Vahis of Texas, in a field near Lake Charles, La., in 1960.

The justices noted also their refusal to rush a decision on the most important case heard so far this term — the one testing the new civil rights law's public accommodations section.

Moreton Rolleston Jr., operator of Atlanta Motel, had asked for a ruling before last week's election. The Justice Department had called for speedy action.

The tribunal took until now to give its "no" answer.

The tribunal, which has often made clear its belief that Negroes cannot be systematically excluded from juries, made no comment in refusing unanimously to hear Louisiana's appeal from a holding that Negroes may not be purposefully included.

Brezhnev, Chou In Unity Toast

Issue Moving To Showdown In Assembly

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The U.N. financial crisis deepened Monday. The Soviet Union insisted again it would not pay a "single kopeck" toward U.N. peace-keeping debts and the United States insisted again this would cost Russia its vote.

All indications were that the issue was moving toward a showdown at the Dec. 1 General Assembly opening.

In addition to insisting on the Article 19 charter penalties against the Soviet Union and eight other delinquents, firm U.S. action in cutting off any voluntary pledge for self-help projects to underdeveloped countries created further consternation.

Note Rejects Demands

The Soviet Union and the United Nations disclosed Monday that Russian Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko last Saturday delivered a note to Secretary General Thant, again rejecting demands that it make a payment of the $52.6 million it owes for U.N. peace-keeping projects in the Congo and the Middle East.

The International Court of Justice has held that these costs are legal obligations subject to regular U.N. budgetary assessments. Article 19 of the charter holds that any country in arrears the equivalent of the past two years' assessments shall lose its vote in the assembly.

Domination Attempt Charged

Saturday's note, according to Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said Russia still held that the Congo operation was carried out "in the interests of the colonialists who tried and are still trying to reestablish their domination, their power over the Congolese people, to regain the possibility of plundering and exploiting the people of the Congo and their natural wealth."

The assembly opening was postponed until Dec. 1 to allow more time for a negotiated settlement of the political-financial showdown with Russia. Although the United States submitted a compromise formula to the Russians last March, it holds that it has not received a substantive answer and there are no U.S.-Soviet negotiations scheduled.

Former Dancer's Nephew Sought In Poison Case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The nephew of Mrs. Vanda Hoff Unger, 66, once a widely known dancer and former wife of band leader Paul Whiteman, was sought Monday on warrants charging him with attempting to poison her.

Sought was William Cootes, 30, a children's psychologist. Police Inspector Kenneth Manley said Cootes was wanted on a warrant charging that he administered carbon tetrachloride — a poison that has damaged liver — in coffee to Mrs. Unger.

Another warrant charges grand theft. Manley said $30,000 to $50,000 in jewelry missing from the woman's safe deposit box has been located and "we think we'll be able to recover it."

The warrants charge that Cootes had been slowly poisoning Mrs. Unger for more than a year by slipping the poison into her luncheon coffee.

Since the alleged poisoning was discovered, police said Mrs. Unger has almost completely recovered.

Two Children Killed On Roads

Castro's Missiles Reported Capable Of Downing U2s

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Castro government of Cuba now has antiaircraft rockets capable of shooting down U.S. U2 reconnaissance planes but evidently is restrained from using them by an agreement with Russia, U.S. officials said Monday.

Officials said that to the best of their knowledge control of surface-to-air missile sites installed by the Soviet Union in 1962 actually passed to Castro's military forces several months ago.

Soviet military advisors in Cuba were known to have been training Cuban officers and men to operate the very modern antiaircraft missile installation for a year or more and the trained men were progressively moved into the base operations.

Soviet Force Reduced

Meanwhile, the Soviet military force in Cuba, estimated by U.S. officials to have numbered more than 22,000 troops at the time of the nuclear missile crisis in October 1962, has been rather steadily reduced.

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey told a news conference Monday that "current information from all sources indicates that no more than a few thousand Soviet military advisers and technicians remain there."

McCloskey said he could not give a precise number nor define a "few thousand." He reported the Soviets are scattered around Cuba at various points and "do not constitute a military force," even though military men can always be used in combat if necessary.

State Department officials said they would stand on McCloskey's statement of a few thousand Soviets still in Cuba.

Estimated At 2,500

However, it was learned that the figure now commonly used in informed Washington quarters is about 2,500 officers and men. It was learned also that there have been no substantial withdrawals of Soviet personnel since last June. This indicates a leveling of the Soviet force as an advisory mission at about 2,500.

Renewed interest in the Cuban situation developed as a result of a Castro interview published Sunday by The New York Times. In the interview, Castro asserted his armed forces control the surface-to-air missiles (SAMs) which the Soviet military installed at 24 bases as part of the nuclear missile buildup in Cuba in the summer of 1962.

Singer Insists She'll Continue Her Tax Fight

SALINAS, Calif. (AP) — Folk singer Joan Baez insists she will continue her fight against war and armament by not paying 60 per cent of her income taxes.

"All I can hope is that it will awaken some people to think," the 23-year-old entertainer said in an interview following a weekend appearance in Sacramento, Calif.

A $50,182 lien has been filed here against Miss Baez by the Internal Revenue Service on a charge of failure to pay her 1963 income taxes.

"The action was something I expected," Miss Baez said of the lien, filed in Monterey County recorder's office.

The IRS thus attached Miss Baez's salary, tied up her bank account and prevents selling her property.

Last April she announced she would pay only 40 per cent of her taxes because she is a pacifist and objects to government spending for armaments. She estimated 60 per cent of her mounting income tax goes for arms.

Much Of Nation In Drought Grip

Midwest Wheat Crop Menaced, Northeast Dry

CHICAGO (AP) — A severe autumn drought is threatening large segments of the winter wheat crop in the Southwest and Midwest while one of the worst moisture shortages of the century is drying up wells, springs and streams in the Northeast.

Brush and timber fires are burning in some areas, water is being pumped to farms for livestock and pastures have been destroyed. Numerous counties throughout the stricken area have been declared eligible for or are receiving federal emergency grain feeds.

An Associated Press survey showed that Colorado is one of the hardest hit states. Its entire $100 million winter wheat crop is on the brink of total destruction.

Laurence Phelps, director of administrative services for the Colorado Agriculture Department, said in Denver that continued dry weather would "wipe out the entire winter crop."

Even drenching rains or snow could come too late to help much, he added.

He said the marathon dry spell which started three years ago has caused the worst drought in Colorado since the 1930s. He said the income of Colorado farmers has fallen from $178 million in 1961 to $135 million last year and "every town in the state is in economic trouble."

In adjoining Wyoming, three southeastern counties are "susceptible" to winter wheat loss unless moisture comes soon. Western Kansas also was described in critical need of moisture.

Conditions were considerably better in other main sections of the western winter wheat belt, however, with Montana, Oklahoma and Texas aided by recent rains.

In New Mexico, ranges were poor to fair condition, requiring supplemental feeding of Daniel W. Borum, acting president of UAW Local 171.

The strike began simultaneously at 10 a.m. at Mack's three plants and one warehouse. The other plants are in Cortland, N. Y., and Allentown, Pa. The parts supply depot is in Bridgeville, N. J.

The Hagerstown plant employs 3,100 but about 500 are super-union members, Borum said. The strike began simultaneously at 10 a.m. at Mack's three plants and one warehouse. The other plants are in Cortland, N. Y., and Allentown, Pa. The parts supply depot is in Bridgeville, N. J.

Mack's Hagerstown plant makes truck engines and transmissions for shipment to the company's Allentown plant. The three plants produce about 60 trucks a day.

Negotiations had been going on in New York since September for a replacement for a three-year contract which expired on Oct. 20. The total number of employees who struck at all four facilities was about 6,000.

A final bargaining session lasted until less than an hour before the walkout.

Martin Gerber, UAW regional director, said the union wants parity in wages where differentials are now as high as $30 a week. Improved working conditions and seniority provisions.

Strike Closes Mack Facility At Hagerstown

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — The Mack Trucks Inc. closed Monday its 3,100 production and office employees who belong to the AFL-CIO United Auto Workers Union walked off the job.

Picket lines went up immediately at two entrances to the plant. A union spokesman said there were no incidents as the 25 to 30 pickets walked back and forth.

"It was very orderly," said Daniel W. Borum, acting president of UAW Local 171.

Man Tells Of Confronting Accused Hit-Run Killer

CELINA, Tenn. (AP) — Three times Welby Lee confronted Mitchell Lee with his case for a trial on a claim against him in the 1944 hit-and-run death of Lee's father, and three times Jones denied it, Lee testified Monday.

On the third occasion, Lee said, Jones told him, "You've been on my back for two years; if you don't get off, I'm going to sue you."

"If you do you'll have to sue the state of Tennessee, too, because we're going to prosecute," Lee said he told Jones.

The 51-year-old Tomkinsville, Ky., man thus told of his meetings with Jones, a 55-year-old Indianapolis, Ind., grocery handyman at the end of an 18-year, 100,000-mile search to find the slayer of his father, Newt Lee.

Jones, who has pleaded innocent, went on trial for second-degree murder Monday in the Dec. 31, 1944, automobile accident in which the elder Lee, a 64-year-old lumberman, was killed.

Lee, star witness in the case, developed in a quest for his father's slayer, did not tell of the dead ends and blind alleys he encountered before centering his search on Jones. He said a tip from relatives of Jones' ex-wife, who live in this area, caused him to suspect Jones.

Spaak Sees France Delaying A-Force

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak of Belgium indicated Monday that stiff French opposition to the U.S.-proposed multilateral nuclear force may postpone a decision on this controversial issue.

"There is no solution to be expected in the near future," Spaak said, "France has raised some questions which were not answered as yet," the Belgian foreign policy chief told reporters after a meeting with Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

Spaak said, however, that he thought some nations might join the United States in creating the multilateral fleet even if France maintains its extremely critical attitude toward it.

Nation's Poor Need Incentive, Educator Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless the war on poverty is fought simultaneously on many fronts there can be no real hope of success, a North Carolina educator said Monday.

Minnie Brown, assistant state home economics agent, said an estimated 40 million Americans are handicapped by poor physical or emotional health, low levels of basic education, and have working skills that either limit them to poorly paid, precarious, employment or skills made obsolescent by technology.

Mrs. Brown told the Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges that there is another major factor which tends to make poverty self-perpetuating.

Many of those who live in poverty for a long time, she said, tend to become part of the "culture of poverty."

Those who accept this culture, she said, no longer make the strenuous effort required to overcome poverty, and their children learn to accept it as a normal way of life.

The culture of poverty, Mrs. Brown said, "is characterized by a sense of despair and hopelessness, by low levels of aspiration, by suspicion of others, and by a set of values that emphasize taking advantage of whatever immediate gratification is possible with little regard for a future that is assumed to be as bleak and hopeless as the present."

Mrs. Brown estimated that more than 20 per cent of the total U.S. population lives in poverty despite the high level of prosperity throughout the country as a whole.

"Any attack on the problem with any real hope of success," she said, "must be a total community attack with coordinated action by a number—if not all—public agencies and volunteer groups in the community."

D.C. Site Selected For Child Center

WASHINGTON (AP) — Selection of a site for a child research center to be operated by the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md., was announced Monday.

The General Services Administration said the location is a triangular tract that fronts 380 feet on the western side of Wisconsin avenue and extends west along the south boundary of the main NIH site for 900 feet. The project is estimated to cost $1 million.

GSA also announced acceptance of the design for an $11.8 million federal records center to be constructed at the junction of Suitland Parkway and Silver Hill Road in Suitland, Md.

About 150,000 executives will move this year as a result of company transfers.

West German High Court Judge Confesses He Lied

KARLSRUHE, Germany (AP) — A West German Supreme Court judge admitted Monday he lied about writing two magazine articles critical of the federal government and his own court.

Dr. Heinrich Jagusch told the president of the Supreme Court he wrote the articles "out of deep concern for the public weal." The confession is expected to explode into a national scandal.

One article, criticizing the unexpected release of an East German espionage suspect last August, was entitled, "Deal with Traitors."

The suspect had been in custody for 10 months and no reasons ever were given for his release. Speculation is that his release was part of a secret agreement with the East German regime to win freedom for a number of political prisoners in East Germany.

The second article criticized the German attorney general and expressed doubt as to the legal grounds for treason charges he filed against the editors of Der Spiegel, a German weekly news magazine.

The treason charges were filed in connection with two articles in the magazine criticizing the effectiveness of the German army.

The arrest of the publisher, Rudolf Augstein, along with several of his editors, contributed greatly to the removal of former defense minister Franz Josef Strauss.

After Jagusch's second article was run in Der Spiegel, a Munich newspaper attributed the articles to him. He denied authorship in a statement to the president of the court, whose office then issued a press release stating that Jagusch was not the author of the articles, published in Der Spiegel, under the pen name Judex.

He also said that "the way of the denial was false" and that he was willing to bear responsibility for his actions as well as his motives.

Jagusch has been under fire from the East German Communist press, accused of aiding in the disbanding of labor unions during the Nazi regime. He has denied the accusations.

Recap Gives Volpe 22,360-Vote Edge

BOSTON (AP) — A completed statewide recapitulation of the vote for Massachusetts governor Monday gave Republican John A. Volpe a 22,360-vote unofficial plurality over Democratic Lt. Gov. Francis X. Belotti.

Volpe as governor-elect, is expected to name key members of his staff later this week. It is thought he will await certification of the official vote before announcing appointments.

Republican Elliot Richardson emerged from the vote recapitulation with a 23,692-vote margin over Democratic opponent John W. Costello in the race for lieutenant governor.

Sato Retains Ikeda Cabinet

TOKYO (AP) — Eisaku Sato took over as prime minister Monday, retained the old cabinet and pledged his government to take the road of cooperation with the West.

He said Japan would seek to play a key role in the stabilization of Asia.

The conservative economist promised to settle the economic problems of Japan.

Sato, 63, was a critic of the economic policies of his predecessor, the ailing Hayato Ikeda. He expressed belief that Ikeda's drive to double national income in 10 years was too high-powered and harmful to the economy.

Supermarket Butchers Plan Walkout Saturday

BALTIMORE (AP)—Butchers at 78 supermarkets in Maryland, Virginia and Delaware have served notice they will strike Saturday unless agreement is reached on a new working contract.

Although the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, AFL-CIO, are negotiating with six other food chains, a strike has been authorized only against A & P.

The same seven chains shut down their 225 stores 10 weeks last spring after clerks called a strike against one of them, Acme.

The chains bargained as a unit with the clerks, but the butchers negotiate individual contracts.

Glen A. Snyder, president of the butchers, said Monday there is an agreement with the clerks to less than a half mile.

Pennsylvania A-Plant To Be Most Efficient

BALTIMORE (AP)—A spokesman for the Philadelphia Electric Co. said Monday the atomic power plant being built in York County, Pa., will be the "world's most efficient all-nuclear power plant."

Novel McHugh told the Baltimore Association of Commerce that the Peach Bottom plant on the Susquehanna River will produce 40,000 kilowatts of electricity from nuclear power.

McHugh said the facility, to be completed early next year, will be the first to use a high temperature helium gas-cooled type of reactor.

Robert E. Ginn, president of the development firm, said the radiation hazard for people living near the plant would be one-twentieth of the radiation from a luminous wrist watch dial.

Maryland News In Brief

MARTINSBURG, W. Va. (AP)—The assistant manager of a Maryland restaurant was fatally injured Monday when his car struck a utility pole on a sharp curve of West Virginia 45 in Martinsburg.

City Police said Roger Burkholder Jr., 19, of Frederick, Md., died at City Hospital at 8:45 a.m. six hours after the accident happened. Burkholder was assistant manager of Roger's Restaurant in Frederick.

ELKTON, Md. (AP)—About 250 children were evacuated Monday from the Kenmore Elementary School on Maryland 280 near here, as firemen fought a small fire in the school basement.

Fire companies from Elkton, Rising Sun and Newark, Del., responded to the alarm. The fire was extinguished in about 15 minutes and was confined to the basement.

The pupils were sent home after the fire, which broke out around 9:15 a.m.

The state fire marshal's office was investigating the blaze.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Gov. Tawes will cut the ribbon Nov. 19 when Morgan State College opens a $65,000 footbridge connecting its north and south campuses.

Fire May Bring Murder Charge

CHESTER, Pa. (UPI)—Gloria Paskings, 22, accused of setting a fire which killed four children here last Oct. 24, may be charged with murder, the Delaware County district attorney said Monday.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court declined Monday to act on an appeal by Percy DeToro, under sentence to execution in Maryland for the 1961 knife slaying of Beatrice Wright in Baltimore.

DeToro, 37, was living with the 44-year-old woman at the time of the killing. He was sentenced to death on July 3, 1961.

DeToro's appeal said he was not properly represented by an attorney at all stages of the proceedings against him.

AF Will Orbit Fuel Cell

ANDREWS AIR FORCE BASE Md. (AP)—The Air Force systems Command (AFSC) said Monday it would place in orbit early next year an experimental fuel cell capable of producing both electricity for space power and pure drinking water for space crews.

"Future astronauts using this type of fuel cell could supply their own water in space," the command said in a news release.

"The fuel cell, an 'electrical battery,' combines hydrogen and oxygen to produce electricity and water.

"The water, a byproduct of the electrochemical reaction with the cell, must be removed to permit efficient generation of electricity."

AFSC said that when the fuel cell is placed in orbit by a carrier rocket launched from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., it is expected to operate for two days and produce about 1.6 volts and 31 amperes of electricity.

Power produced from the cell could be used to drive equipment in future aerospace craft, the command said.

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am a nine-year-old girl with a big problem. My father bought a brand new car two weeks ago. It is shiny and beautiful. My father said it is up to all mem-bers of the family to keep the car looking nice and new.

The first law my father made was that nobody is supposed to eat in the new car. A neighbor boy I like very much rides to his music lesson with me every Thursday. My mother picks me up right after school.

Last Thursday Ed got into our new car eating a baloney sand-wich left over from his lunch. My mother told him to finish the sandwich before he got into the car. Ed said "O. K." but I could see he was very embar-rased.

I told my mother later I didn't think she should boss other people's children. She said to write to you for your advice. So I am writing. Please answer.

MONICA
Dear Ann Landers: Your mother is not "bossing other people's children." She simply told Ed he could not eat in the car, which is her privilege.

Dear Ann Landers: You'd better check your arithmetic with reference to a recent col-umn about the fellow who loaned his brother $2,000 two years ago and is having trouble col-lecting.

You said "If his brother paid him $25 a month the debt would have been half repaid by this time."

According to my calculations, $25 a month over a period of two years is $600 — and that's a far cry from one half of $2,000. I would love to borrow money from you, Ann, on the basis of that kind of figuring. How about it?

I enjoy your column very much. Keep up the good work. But get yourself a calculating machine. — DAVID G. M. OF NEW, BRITAIN, CONNECTICUT
Dear David: I can offer no explanation for the error except the obvious one. Stupidity.

Ten lashes with the cord of and adding machine for Granny Annie. I am utterly ashamed of myself (and the character who is supposed to check my arithmetic).

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Through Dark-Colored Glasses

Sun glasses aren't needed now? Don't be too sure. Use them to help see yourself as others see you. They'll show up the wearing of too much make-up — a fact that others are well aware of, but which is all unbeknownst to you.

With your cosmetics applied as usual, put on your darkest sun glasses and wear them around the house for ten minutes or more. Everything looks different, a different color and different in relation to other colors. Now take the glasses off. Look at yourself in the mirror. What you see may be quite a shock.

Dark lenses change color values so much that when they are removed, you see yourself in quite another way than you do normally. In the short period before your eyes adjust to the light change, splotchy rouge is clearly defined, powder that's too light looks ghostly, and there's no doubt about it if you're wearing the wrong foundation — it will look unmistakably too heavy, too light, or too dark if you are.

You know how firmly our experts stand for naturalness in make-up, that in the school it's always called make-down instead of make-up. But the art of using beauty aids delicately, no matter how well started, needs to be checked now and then, and that's why we recommend this sun spec inspection. It shows sometimes startlingly how cosmetics have been applied too lavishly or misplaced.

It's nearly always true that the increased use of cosmetics comes about so gradually that the painted doll really doesn't know she is. Don't take a chance on making such a mistake. Look at the world through dark-colored glasses for a few minutes whether you think you need to or not and then take another look at what you thought was make-down is doing to you.

Scientific tables to find your ideal measurements—from top to toe! See them in "Do You Measure Up?"—a handy, go-everywhere booklet that is yours when you send 10c and a stamped, return envelope to John Robert Powers in care of this newspaper.

American Education Week activities commenced at Ursuline Academy last Friday with an assembly and the presentation of a panel discussion on the importance of a college education.

Participating in the discussion were Linda Sue Castle, Patricia Graham, Nancy Hammond, Sue Humbertson, Mary Catherine Love and Regina Sirna.

One of the highlights of the observance will be the induction of five new members into the National Honor Society this Friday.

Qualifying for membership by maintaining a yearly academic average of 90 per cent and being recommended by faculty vote are Linda Sue Castle, Patsy Coyle, Patricia Graham, Jo Ellen Lancaster and Mary Beth Williams.

Rev. Daniel Conway, OFM, Cap., assistant pastor of St. Peter and Paul Church, will speak at the induction ceremony.

Five Ursuline students have qualified for the principal's list at the end of the first quarter with averages of 93 per cent and perfect attendance records. They are Carol Devlin, senior; Linda Sue Castle, junior; Mary Ann Coleman and Mary Frances Schwenninger, sophomores, and Susan Dishong, freshman.

Twelve students attained First Honor Roll merits and 28 students were named to the Second Honor Roll.

Heading the American Education Week events today will be the participation of senior students in a "Career Day" program at Fort Hill High School.

An open house program will be held at Ursuline on Wednesday to acquaint parents with the school. Parents will be permitted to sit in on classes and observe how they are conducted.

The students will attend a presentation of "Othello" at Frostburg State College on Thursday and Saturday. The event will give students an opportunity to visit the college and observe the college students in their work.

Individual classroom discussions are planned during the week with topics that include education and progress to emphasize American Education Week.

Several Hurt In Crashes On Area Highways

Three persons were hospitalized and two others injured in three separate highway accidents Sunday.

The most seriously injured was James O. Thayer, 19, Star Route, Oakland, who sustained severe lacerations of his head in a one-car accident yesterday in Oakland.

In another mishap two persons were admitted to Miners Hospital, Frostburg, and another youth injured in a crash along State Route 36 near Frostburg.

Admitted to the hospital were Gary R. Taylor, 17, of RD 1, Corriganville, who suffered a fractured left leg, and Pauline Wilma Kennell, 38, of RD 4, Meyersdale, who was admitted for a possible wrist injury and possible internal injuries.

Treated and released at the hospital was John C. Cunningham, 16, Corriganville.

In the third area crash, Dewey F. Phillips, 32, of 107½ Pennsylvania Avenue, was treated for minor injuries and released at Sacred Heart Hospital after striking a utility pole yesterday at the intersection of Union and South Centre streets.

The Oakland mishap occurred at 12:20 a. m. when Thayer was driving west on Oak Street in Oakland. His vehicle struck a parked car on the northside of the street. Police said the young man apparently fell asleep at the wheel.

Mr. Phillips' 1960 sedan was demolished when it struck the utility pole yesterday. Police said Phillips was northbound on Centre Street when the accident occurred. No reason was listed for the cause.

Maryland State Police said the accident along Maryland Route 36 occurred when Taylor, driving north on the highway at an apparent high rate of speed, lost control, crossed the center line and struck the southbound car being operated by Mrs. Kennell.

After being treated in the Frostburg hospital, Mrs. Kennell was transferred to Memorial Hospital here where her condition is listed as "good".

IF

Why not make the most of it?

It's a fact of business life that IF exists in every organization. Some businesses have put it to work for them improving operating efficiencies, reducing costs, even expanding sales.

But in most companies IF just exists, haphazard and unplanned; it continues to create costly problems in every area of most business organizations.

What is IF?

IF is Information Flow, the transmission of information into and inside of your organization—from people to people, people to machines, and machines to machines. It's the nervous system of your business. Even now, as you read this, unplanned IF may be eating into your company's profits.

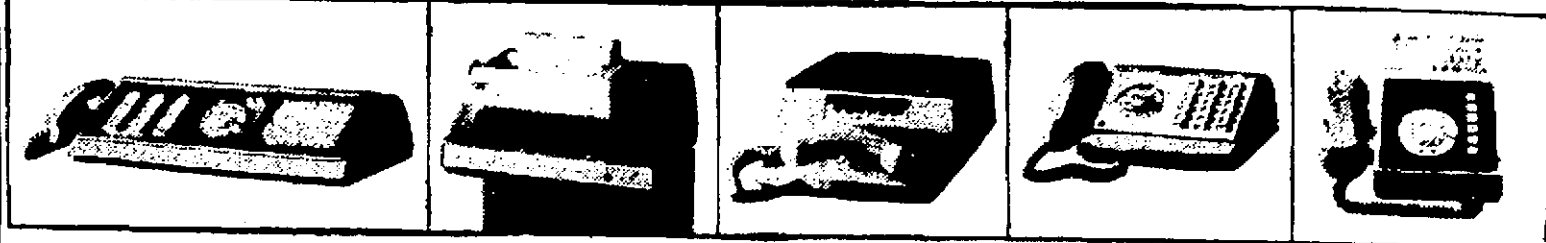

How to put IF to work for your company

Now, C&P offers a unique service to the Maryland business community—the counsel of experts, highly trained in the analysis of Information Flow. A Communications Consultant will make an IF study of your business based on his thoroughgoing knowledge of the capabilities of the most complete range of business communications equipment in the world . . . the communications equipment of the Bell System.

The Consultant's analysis is offered as a part of your business telephone service—without extra charge or obligation.

He will recommend action only when it will improve your operating efficiencies, cut your costs or increase your profits.

To find out how an IF analysis can help your company, call the C&P Business Office and ask to speak to a Communications Consultant.

Repairs Asked For Oldtown Road

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan asked the Mayor and Council yesterday to approve light-surfacing of an area at the lower end of Oldtown Road to provide ingress and egress there, especially in the upcoming bad weather months.

The area, approximately 20 feet wide, is between the large fill area for the Wineow Street Bridge and property of the Housing Authority of Cumberland.

The proposal is to put a street along the fill to connect the dead-end at Oldtown Road with the new Cresap Street.

Mr. Keegan said the work should be done before winter sets in and added if the work is not done cars will not be able to get out in bad weather.

City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum said a map had been prepared of the proposal and submitted to the State Roads Commission since the area is on an SRC right-of-way. The SRC will determine if the right-of-way is available and study the intersection, where it is planned to run traffic into Cresap Street, he said.

William E. Gilpin of Independence Street, appeared before council to point out what he called a "bottleneck" existing on Walnut Street. Parking should be restricted to one-side or Independence Street should be made one-way "uphill," he said.

Mr. Gilpin said a bad situation exists again on Decatur Street in front of Sacred Heart Hospital where parking on both sides of the street sometimes blocks emergency vehicle passage.

Mr. Keegan told Mr. Gilpin "We haven't had a chance to get to Walnut Street yet" and pointed out changes cost money. The same situation exists all over the country, he said in regards to traffic problems.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 459 Blair House at 1831 Pennsylvania Ave. close by the presidential mansion, and used as a guest-house for distinguished foreign visitors to Washington, takes its name from the family of Francis Preston Blair, a lawyer and ardent Andrew Jackson supporter. To him, President Jackson entrusted in 1829 establishment of an administration mouthpiece, The Washington Globe, which remained the official organ of the Democratic Party for more than two decades—with, of course, the material support of Jacksonian Democrat administrations.

Francis Blair turned against all three Democrat candidates in 1860, Douglas, Breckinridge and Bell, in favor of Lincoln, and cultivated influence in the administration. But in 1864, he conceived the idea that, through his old personal acquaintanceship with high Confederates, he could effect a peace. Without telling the president of his intention, Blair secured a pass through the fighting lines and had several interviews with Jefferson Davis and others in the regime at Richmond. These were to lead to a futile "peace conference" early in 1865.

Francis Blair's youngest son, Francis Jr., a veteran of the Mexican War, resigned from Congress in 1861 to join the Army, in which he rose to command of a corps for Sherman.

Francis Blair Sr.'s elder son, Montgomery, a West Pointer who was an officer in the Seminole War, had been appointed postmaster-general in Lincoln's cabinet—a post in which he proved a progressive force. Blair instituted railway postoffices, accelerated interchanges of letters between soldiers and their families, and instituted the movement for the International Postal Union, the first true league of nations. But he was a dissenter to policies of the Lincoln administration, and, eventually, Sept. 23, 1864, Blair resigned.

Ironically, two months earlier, Lincoln had refused a demand of Secretary of War Stanton that Blair be dismissed arbitrarily from the Cabinet.

Forests Of W.Va. Closed To Public Due To Fires

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—All West Virginia forest and brush lands, totaling an estimated 11 million acres were ordered closed to public entry Monday as a precaution against the continued spread of woodland fires.

The state's small game hunting season was suspended indefinitely as a result of the action.

Nearly 200 fires were burning—including 63 reported not under control—when State Natural Resources Director Warden M. Lane issued the closure order effective at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The 30-hour delay was required by law in order to allow time for public notice to be given.

Lane acted at 11:15 a.m. following a 75-minute conference with State Forester Lester McClung, fire control director Asher W. Kelly and other aides who reported that the fire danger was growing and that no rain was in sight any time this week.

Kelly said the situation was critical in the six-county southern coal field area which makes up the state's traditional "hot spot" nearly every forest fire season. It includes Kanawha, Lincoln, Boone, Wayne, Mingo and Logan Counties.

The closure effects all lands covered by trees or brush, both public and private, except open fields and farmland.

Exempts persons living in such areas, on their way to or from their homes, and other bona fide users and industries which take adequate precautions to prevent fires. The order also bans starting of outdoor fires in areas adjacent to woodlands.

Lane said at least one-half inch of rain was needed to provide relief from the outbreak of fires, which followed weeks of dry weather. But the long-range forecast issued Monday

County Issues 28 Permits For Building

Some 28 building permits and zoning certificates for construction estimated by the builders as costing a total of $429,025 were issued by the Allegany County Planning and Zoning Department during the last half of October.

Three apartment projects account for $217,000 or more than half of the total. Biggest of these was the permit issued to Siegel and Spears to build $150,000 townhouse apartments on South Broadway Street Extended in Election District 26, Frostburg.

Lewis W. Yonker was issued a permit for a $40,000 apartment building on Cresap Drive in Election District 6. The third permit was obtained by Maryland Homes Company for a $27,000 apartment building on National Highway in Election District 29, LaVale.

Twelve of the 28 permits issued between October 15 and October 30 by County Engineer Albert S. Payne in his capacity as acting county planning director were for new dwellings.

A rural influence was reflected by the fact that three of the permits involved stables. They included a cow stable on Route 51, rebuilding a horse stable on Vermont Avenue in Homewood Addition and an addition to a stable on Hinkle Road.

The other 10 permits in the last half of October included two for carports, two for additions to garages, one each for a foundation dwelling, dwelling addition, garage, storage building and a $13,000 Masonic lodge hall on Route 36 in Election District 13, Mt. Savage.

Six of the late October permits were for construction in Election District 7, Cresaptown-Rawlings, and a like number in District 29, LaVale. There were three in District 3, Flintstone; two each in West Side suburban, and 23, East Side suburban, and one each in Districts 9, Barton; 11, Frostburg suburban; 12, Frostburg suburban; 13, Mt. Savage; 16, North Branch; 20, Corriganville-Ellerslie; 21, East Side suburban; 26, Frostburg suburban, and 33, Kifer.

Suit Is Settled After Trial Starts

A damage suit growing out of a traffic accident on Bedford Road over three years ago was settled midway through the trial before a jury in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday morning.

Gladys Marie Haines, 23 North Mechanic Street, through Attorney Thomas N. Berry, had sued Robert W. Cross, RD 3, Knob Road, for personal injury and damage to her automobile sustained March 25, 1961. Earl E. Manges was defense attorney. Associate Judge Harold E. Naughton presided at the trial, which came to an abrupt end.

Canal Data Planned By Rec Unit

Mimeographed material on the recreational possibilities of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal from Cumberland to the Paw Paw Tunnel is being prepared by the City Recreation Department.

The material will be made available to those who wish to hike along the towpath of the historic waterway or to travel it by bicycle or by horseback.

In preparation for the leaflet, C. Eugene Mason, recreation director, and Mrs. Eva Hogan, assistant director, spent all day Friday on the canal with Charles Parkinson, National Park Service ranger.

The outing was arranged by Edwin M. Dale, superintendent of the C & O Canal National Monument, after the department advised that it gets numerous inquiries here concerning the use of the towpath and was interested in first-hand information.

The party got on the towpath at the Community Ball Park here and walked to and inspected the tunnel after a short visit with Isaac Long at Lock 68 at Oldtown.

The material which is being prepared will list all basic information needed by visitors. It will include distances between major points, points of access to the canal from area highways, the condition of the towpath, camping and picnic facilities and federal regulations for the use of the canal.

The regulations permit hiking and bicycling on the canal towpath at all times and along the entire 184-mile route.

Horseback riding is permitted from Cumberland to Seneca, Md., the section under the jurisdiction of the National Park Service, but not from the busier section from Seneca to Washington, which is under the jurisdiction of the National Capital Parks Service.

Mr. Parkinson said that horseback riders should use caution when crossing aqueducts, such as the one at Everts Creek, and for safety should take the route over the top of the Paw Paw Tunnel.

The tunnel, he said, is one of the top attractions to visitors. It is 3,117 feet long and cuts off six miles of river.

Phone Service Is Restored In LaVale Section

Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company crews last night completed repairs to several cables which were burned when a fire swept through an apartment house at 343 National Highway in LaVale early Sunday morning.

The fire put 600 phones and 400 trunk lines out of service and cable had to be brought to Cumberland from Annapolis and the Eastern Shore in order to make the necessary repairs.

The fire also knocked out electrical and television service, but Potomac Edison Company and Potomac Valley Television Company completed their repairs Sunday.

The repairs to the phone cable took longer because several thousand small cables had to be spliced and tested.

LaVale Fire Being Probed

Jesse Jacobs, state fire marshal, and Tfc. Bernard J. Chabot, criminal investigator for the Maryland State Police, yesterday questioned several persons in an effort to determine the cause of the fire which destroyed a frame apartment building in LaVale early Sunday morning.

Over 100 firemen from three volunteer companies fought the fire and managed to keep it from spreading to several nearby homes.

Several members of the LaVale Fire Company Auxiliary were at the scene from 3 a. m. to 8 p. m. Sunday serving coffee and sandwiches to firemen and utility repairmen.

As part of the American Education Week observance, parents are invited to join with the English teachers of Allegany County for an "Evening in English" program at Allegany High School starting at 7:30 p. m. today.

Many of the high school English teachers of the county have been attending a series of meetings this fall.

Death Toll Mounts

PIRACICABA, Brazil (UPI)—The number of dead recovered from the rubble of a 15-story building that collapsed last Friday rose to 38 Monday. Officials feared at least another 20 persons might be buried under the ruins.

Home Building Follows New Water, Sewer Lines

Records of the City Engineering Department indicate that funds spent for extending sewer and water lines should be good investments.

A typical example is the Ridge Terrace water and sewer line project, which was completed late last September under the federal Accelerated Public Works program at a cost to the city of $8,095—half of the costs for construction.

Yesterday the Engineering Department issued a permit to Richard F. Shober, 544 North Mechanic Street, to build a one-story dwelling at 719 Ridge Terrace.

The dwelling, with basement garage, will be 40 by 27 feet and of frame and brick construction.

Far more important on a long-range basis was the decision of the Water Department to build the 7,600-foot line which connects it with the Naval Armory.

This project will, when extensions are completed next year, open up some 80 acres of city and county land for homes.

County School Children Will See 'Red Shoes' Play

"Red Shoes," a Pittsburgh Children's Theatre production, will be presented six times in Allegany County this week under the sponsorship of the County PTA Council.

These performances are scheduled primarily for the elementary school children of Allegany County.

The first two performances are scheduled Wednesday at Fort Hill High School at 9:45 a. m. and 1:15 p. m. On Thursday it will be presented at Bruce High School in Westernport at 9:15 a. m. and at Central Elementary School in Lonaconing at 1:15 p. m. Finally, at Beall High School in Frostburg at 9:30 a. m. and at Mt. Savage School at 1:15 p. m.

"Red Shoes" was written by Hans Christian Anderson and was adapted for the stage by Hans Josef Schmidt. It tells the story of a little girl named Karen who never owned a pair of shoes. She sees the Princess of the country who passes by on her way to the palace and falls in love with the Princess' red shoes.

Maryland Battles At Least 16 Fires

By The Associated Press Firemen battled at least 16 brush and woodland fires in Maryland Monday as unseasonably warm weather continued.

The fire danger index stood at Stage 3 (serious) in most parts of the state and reached Stage 4 (very serious) on the Eastern Shore. Clear, sunny skies, with temperatures rising to near 70, was the forecast for Tuesday.

The largest fire reported Monday burned more than 10 acres on the east Slope of South Mountain in Frederick County. Another blaze burned six acres near Glyndon in Baltimore County.

Air Force Seeks Skilled Veterans

Many previously "frozen" skills needed by the Air Force have been re-opened to former servicemen, said Sgt. Gerald L. Orebaugh, local recruiter.

This means that veterans of any branch of service have a chance of enlisting in the Air Force, in parts of the state and reached many cases with the same rank they held at the time of their discharge.

Some of the "needed" specialties include transportation, education and training, munitions and weapons maintenance, missile maintenance, medical specialist, radio and radar maintenance and photography. More information may be learned by contacting the recruiter at the Post Office or call PA 2-0540.

Hidden Microphones Raise Questions

It has been discovered that microphones were hidden in the U.S. embassy building in Moscow when it was built in 1960. The building has been occupied for more than a year and the microphones have just come to light.

This suggests that the building was not properly inspected before the U.S. embassy moved into it, and that security since that time has been inadequate.

In May it was discovered that sensitive microphones had been embedded in the walls of the U.S. embassy in Moscow. That any U.S. secrets were lost in either case has been understandably denied. But the mere presence of the microphones is cause enough for uneasiness.

The communists are notorious for the use of microphones, and for any American diplomats simply to assume that their embassies are free from bugging is incredible negligence. And however cleverly concealed the microphones may have been, it would seem that anything approaching careful and scientific watchfulness would have revealed them before this.

Carelessness by the U.S. State Department in such sensitive areas as Moscow and Warsaw is inexcusable, and it could result in great damage to the United States. If the State Department cannot do better than this, it's time the administration did a little investigating into personnel and their qualifications.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

A Rosy Status Quo

To talk about the future of the Republican Party at this moment is a futile thing, for everything depends on how Lyndon Johnson construes his "mandate." The new Republican Party will take form from the opposition that Johnson generates, and this must wait upon the White House decisions of a strong, wary character who has held out a general promise to all groups without really committing himself to much in the way of specific promises to any group.

The election returns might caution LBJ to go slow. Does the Goldwater defeat mean that the country is ready to plunge ahead into a big round of New Dealism? Since no outside radical economic issues were offered to the electorate, little basis for this is to be found in the votes. Many businessmen went for Johnson on the supposition that he will continue a tax cutting program (excise tax cuts for the next round) and keep the federal budget below $100 billion a year. And the general issue of conservatism versus Big State Liberalism got sidetracked in a welter of argument about nuclear deterrent policy. Partly this was the fault of Goldwater's off-the-cuff habit of speaking, partly it was the fault of the Rockefeller-Lodge-Chris Herter Republicans who made whopping pre-convention mountains out of molehills without regard to what it would do to the party in the autumn. (Old Joe Martin at San Francisco predicted that the Republicans would die in November from the self-inflicted wounds of May and June.) But the main reason for the sidetracking of issues was Johnson's own insistence that arguments would only cause election-day trouble. This deprived the Democrats of any opportunity to discover what the country might want in terms of specific policy and legislation.

The idea that November 3 offered a referendum on conservatism cannot be squared with the fact that LBJ presented himself to the nation as a symbol of peace and prosperity, which are things that everybody wants without regard to the ideological spectrum. As a matter of fact, the LBJ campaign was practically identical with the one waged by Coolidge against John W. Davis in 1924. If you are a conservative, and are looking for a hopeful sign, you will take great heart from what happened in New York State, where the Conservative Party's candidate for Senator, Henry Paolucci, got 203,369 votes, a high-water mark for his party. The Conservatives figure they might have gone to 400,000 if they had been permitted to put the Goldwater-Miller electors on their party voting machine line.

Meanwhile, the other New York State "leverage" group, the Alex Rose-Dubinsky Liberal Party, which possessed the advantage of having the Johnson-Humphrey electors on its line, polled a disappointing 340,000 votes for Johnson and 270,000 for Senator Kennedy.

What all this means, in terms of New York politics, is that the Rockefeller Republicans must reckon with a small but potent "leverage" group whose vote on endorsement might make or break a Republican candidate for almost any important State office.

Barry Goldwater himself may be through as a Presidential candidate. But the hard core of Republican conservatives which represents about a third of the American electorate means that "Goldwaterism" has a veto power within the Republican Party if it chooses to exercise it on election day. By the same token, the Republican "liberals" also have a veto power (indeed, they have just finished exercising it). What this would seem to mean is that the Republicans must come up with a candidate who knows how to be conservative (to the point of avoiding a "me too" stigma without raising the hackles of the "moderates.") There doesn't seem to be anyone on the horizon who is capable of working such a miracle. George Murphy, who beat Salinger in California, is hardly a national figure. Governor Romney of Michigan needlessly offended the conservatives by going outside of his own state to say, in a pre-election speech in Massachusetts, that "victory doesn't always produce the best results."

The Republican savior, in any case, won't appear until after the Democrats have made some bad mistakes that hurt people in their pocketbooks or that involve them in troubles overseas. You can't beat a status quo as long as it is coming up roses.

'I Still Have A Firm Grip On Him'

New Congress: The Outlook For The President

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON—The most interesting feature of Lyndon B. Johnson's triumph at the polls is the severe test that has been set for the President by the magnitude of his own success.

Good luck was a vital ingredient in this success. There was good management, too—perhaps more good management than most people now admit. But it is quite certain that the President could never have won a victory of these dimensions without the fortunate help of the Republican Party's macabre suicidal impulse, which led to the nomination of Sen. Barry Goldwater.

For just this reason, the campaign itself was not a truly acid test. But his victory is such a test. The test will come in two parts.

To begin with, humility is not the most conspicuous trait of the strange and truly remarkable man who has now been returned to the White House by such an overwhelming majority. Furthermore, overwhelming majorities are seldom good for Presidents, as the record proves.

Even poor blowsy Warren Harding might have been a bit careful in the White House, if his winning margin had not been so big. As for Franklin Delano Roosevelt, his 1936 majority made him dangerously over-confident. Arrogance born of over-confidence produced the disastrous court fight. And the fight over the court-packing bill left Roosevelt politically hamstringed throughout his second term in office.

If not exactly humble, Lyndon B. Johnson is at least exceedingly prudent and long-headed. So one may hope that he will pass this first part of the test now ahead of him, although one must wait and see in order to be sure.

If the test's first part will demand self-restraint, the second part will instead require self-revelation. During the campaign, the President has talked a lot about "the great society," just as he has talked a lot about love. But as yet, he has no more complete blueprints for his "great society" than he does for love itself.

Under the able direction of young Bill D. Moyers, a dozen distinguished task forces have been working for the President on every problem from urban sprawl to education. But the task forces have produced no final results. The President has not yet passed upon their work. And the finished blueprints now in the White House cupboards therefore consist exclusively of a few Kennedy leftovers, like the Medicare bill.

It will be a major act of self-revelation when the President finally offers a specific program designed to promote this "great society" of his. Where he really stands on the great social issues of our time; how much he is a successful political contriver, and how much he is a political creator; whether he cares more for his business supporters recruited from Republican ranks or more for his own party's political tradition—all these questions will then be answered.

Once again, one may reasonably hope that the answers will be extremely satisfactory. For THREE-HEADED OGRE? — Washington experts on Russian developments are now convinced that the overthrow of Nikita Khrushchev may have demonstrated a serious weakness in the Communist world. That weakness is the gradual erosion of Moscow's domination over Communist Eastern Europe.

The leadership of some of these Communist countries, as well as that of the French and Italian Communist parties, displayed unusual "nerviness" in questioning the circumstances of Khrushchev's fall from power. They wanted to know why. And the new Russian leaders have gone to extreme lengths to answer their questions.

It is inconceivable that such demands would have been voiced or replied to in the years when Josef Stalin ran Russia and the rest of world Communism with an iron hand.

There were fears when Khrushchev was deposed that Russia would attempt to heal its deep breach with Red China so that Communism would again face the capitalist world with a united front. It now appears that Communism may evolve into a three-headed monster — an independent China, Russia, and a newly emerging bloc of Eastern European countries, all with ideas and aspirations of their own.

'Medic Alert' Offers Protection In Emergency

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The medic alert Foundation International was founded in 1953 by Dr. Marion C. Collins of California. His young daughter nearly died from an anaphylactic reaction to tetanus antitoxin. The father worried about this girl and wondered how she could be protected should she become unconscious from an accident. Dr. Collins realized a card in her purse could be overlooked easily and the girl did not want to be tattooed, as some diabetics or epileptics, have been. After a family conference, it was decided she should wear a bracelet engraved with the words "Allergic to tetanus antitoxin." The front of the bracelet was to carry the words "Medic alert" in bright red.

This led to establishment of the foundation with membership open to anyone in a similar predicament, such as arthritis taking one of the corticosteroids, certain heart patients, and those with various types of allergies. For a one-time fee, the member receives an emblem on which is engraved the name, emergency phone number of the foundation's central answering service, the serial number, and the medical problem. A central card file is maintained in Turlock, Cal., which is available to physicians and other authorized personnel in emergencies. In addition, it carries the symbol approved by the American Medical Association—a hexagon shape containing a six-pointed figure with the staff of Aesculapius superimposed upon it. The universality of this symbol will make it easily recognizable by people all over the world.

Many organizations, groups, and communication media have publicized this foundation. It is a good thing to investigate if you have one of approximately 200 conditions that needs special attention in case of emergency.

The Boston Poison Information center received four calls last winter about women who had inhaled gases produced by mixing household cleaners. The most common cause of poisoning, according to Dr. Harris C. Faigel, stems from combining sodium hypochlorite (a common ingredient of bleaches) and ammonia or vinegar. The commercial cleaners contain safe ingredients but poisoning occurs when a household decides that a mixture will clean better than a single agent.

Chlorine is manufactured from the reaction between vinegar and sodium hypochlorite. Inhaling this highly corrosive gas leads to coughing, choking, headache, and dizziness. More symptoms may develop several hours later as a result of pulmonary congestion. The poisonous effect is hastened when the housewife cleans in a poorly ventilated space, more so during the winter when all windows are closed.

Mississippi White Residents Apply Economic Pressure To Negroes

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Paul D. Wilson is one of the white men who pleaded guilty in connection with the bombing of various Negro homes and churches in the most terrorized town in Mississippi, McComb. I talked with him shortly after he was given a suspended sentence.

"Any statement by me would be unwise at this time," he said. Wilson was at the Illinois Central Railroad when I reached him, and said that his guilt in the bombings had not interfered with his employment and that life was going on about the same. Beyond saying that the situation in McComb was now quiet, he did not want to discuss the incident.

His cousin, another confessed bomber, Billy Earl Wilson, is also still employed by the Illinois Central, a railroad partially owned by the Harriman family of New York. Averell Harriman, former governor of New York, is now Under Secretary of State.

Two other bombers who got suspended sentences have been dropped by their employers. Ernest Zeek was told by Western Auto Supply that he "couldn't come back at this time, we have too many Negro customers," while Murphy J. Duncan was dropped as manager of the Firestone Tire Agency in McComb.

All of this raises the question of economic pressure. This was behind the forcing of Mrs. Alyene Quin to move out of her restaurant because she was feeding Freedom Workers, and was probably behind the fact that her beer license was suspended, though the official charge was that a pint of whiskey was found on her premises.

Two-Way Economic Pressure

Economic pressure was also behind the arrest and jailing of twelve Freedom workers for cooking for themselves in Freedom House without a health permit. Cooking is almost compulsory for them because they are welcome at not many Negro restaurants and at few white restaurants. These were some of the Freedom Workers whom America's Conscience Fund bailed out of jail.

Economic pressure was also involved in the firing of a Negro plumber, John T. Cotton, by the Burt Plumbing Co. after Freedom House was bombed and it was learned that the house had worked for the Burt Plumbing Co. for 20 years.

Economic pressure is also behind the requirement that Negroes who register to vote list their places of employment.

But economic pressure can be a two-way street, and what some thinking Mississippians worry about is the fact that under the new Civil Rights Law, President Johnson has the power to cut the vast flow of Federal funds to the state.

So far, Federal officials in Washington have been so blithely unconcerned about the racial showdown in Mississippi that most Mississippians don't fear economic retaliation.

Philadelphia, Miss., Benefits

For instance, at the very same time President Johnson was spurring the FBI into greater activity to apprehend those guilty of murdering three civil rights workers at Philadelphia, Miss., another agency of the Johnson Administration was handing $33,400 over to Philadelphia for improving its airport.

The FAA's explanation is that this was a routine recommendation made by a local inspector, which was OK'd in Washington in conformity with the law. In Mississippi, however, the grant of $33,400 gave the impression to white racists that they could both thumb their noses at the government and simultaneously get subsidized by the government.

Another example: Last summer, the Post Office Department in Washington handed $25,400 to Byron de la Beckwith, after he had been charged with the shooting from ambush of Medgar Evers, Mississippi head of the NAACP. Beckwith got off with a hung jury.

Explanation for the Post Office's generous payment to Beckwith after the murder trial was that it was routine matter. Beckwith owned some land in Jackson which the Post Office Department wanted.

In Mississippi these matters are not regarded as routine, however. The white community considers them an indication that Washington is not overly concerned with murder, crime, and bombings. But with the Negro community, these Federal hand-outs increase bitterness.

Where the economic pinch would really hurt, however, is if civil rights leaders in Washington induced the Defense Department and the Northern buying public to start boycotting the tremendous output of textiles, hosiery, lingerie, and cotton goods produced in Mississippi mills which don't even begin to give Negro employment a fair break.

The Dimpleby Style

By John Crosby

—LONDON

And now, as the leaves are turning to gold and the glittering draughts of campaign oratory turn sere and yellow in the newspaper files, let us turn our attention to the majestic cadences of Richard Dimpleby's prose, which may have permanently affected my own and gives even this opening sentence, if I may make so bold, a resplendent blunder, a faint but distant echo, of Mr. Dimpleby's own glorious and, if I may, and on the whole I don't know why I shouldn't, say, gleaming utterance.

But, my God, Dimpleby, how in hell do you ever get the damned sentences to stop once you get them rolling along like this?

Richard Dimpleby is the BBC commentator who has been covering royal weddings, coronations, and other panoplied, majestic and faintly obsolescent occasions with bell-like solemnity, chilly precision and a shattering command of the old and irrelevant fact. Just about the time you, in America, were wending your democratic and splendidly American way to the polls — here I go again — we in England were listening to Mr. Dimpleby describe, in his richly dimbled language, the procession of the Queen from Buckingham Palace to the House of Lords to open Parliament.

In this annual orgy of imperial ritual, the British bring out all the ancient baubles — the crowns, the maces, the sceptres, the tiaras — that lie in the Tower of London the rest of the year and Dimpleby brings out a lot of antique adjectives that are carefully kept in velvet in another room in the Tower except on state occasions like this.

"The Horse Guards, resplendent in their uniforms," he cries. Resplendent is one of his favorite words and, if I may — and I will — say, he's the only man who can utter it so resplendently or, in fact, at all.

"There's Lord Cholmondeley (pronounced Chunley, chum) in his scarlet uniform, all picked out with gold." (I bet David Brinkley could never throw that line away.) "The Archbishop of Canterbury, a huge, rather benevolent figure." "The Queen, a serene and, I may say, splendid figure." Or better yet: "The Queen, as always, radiant." (The radiance of queens is as unquestioned as that of brides.) "The Royal Horse Guards in their panoply." The House of Lords "aglow and aflame" with tiaras, decorations and Duchesses. The Irish State Coach — "how it glitters and gleams in the sunlight." "It's almost," said Dimpleby, "as if someone had opened a history book and let out all the characters — and they came walking right out of history." It is, indeed, especially when he rolls off all the titles of these panoplied resplendent figures — The FitzAlan Pursuivant Extraordinary (which is what I always wanted to grow up to be until I got deflected into this wretched profession of journalism), the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, the Treasurer of Her Majesty's Household, the Keeper of Her Majesty's Privy Purse. (I don't know exactly, but I think the first one pays the milk bills and the second one keeps handy sixpences for the parking maels.)

Aah, it was a resplendent — I had to use that word once more before they put it back in the Tower till next year — occasion for all of us, and I thought, if I may say so, that Mr. Dimpleby bespoke it, as always, resplendently, and that he is one of the brightest jewels in the diadem of the Queen, to say nothing of the BBC, if I may say so, and try and stop me.

One of the duties of the Queen of England is to read the speech written for her by the incoming Prime Minister in exquisitely non-committal accents, implying neither approval nor disapproval, a task almost as difficult as that of the Lord Great Chamberlain who has to walk backwards throughout the whole ceremony. She performed this difficult duty, reading Harold Wilson's Socialist prose, very graciously, every inch a constitutional monarch.

But as this Socialist program was unveiled, the cameras peered long and archly into the faces of the disgruntled aristocracy — Duchesses in ermine, Dukes in their scarlet and white resplendor — listening to this promise to nationalize steel, nationalize urban land, and bring more equality to everyone. There is almost nothing more expressive than the visage of a British aristocrat. And the sheer horror in those faces, the scorn, the outrage was better than all the editorials the following day.

That icy aristocratic scorn was summed up later in the House of Commons by the former Prime Minister, Sir Alec Douglas-Home. Sir Alec confessed that it had not been a good year on the grouse moors, adding: "I'm sure that, under Socialism, the grouse will, no doubt, multiply."

Fight With Clay Scheduled Monday

BOSTON (UPI)—Dr. Nathan Shapiro of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission staff Monday approved Sonny Liston's controversial left shoulder.

The physician pronounced the former champ Liston and current champion Cassius Clay in "peak shape" for their return heavyweight title fight at Boston Garden next Monday night.

Shapiro made his decision after two examinations that did not include any mental tests.

Until the physical exams at the Department of Public Safety building, there had been uncertainty whether Liston's allegedly injured left shoulder and biceps would crop up again in training or in the fight and cause him to lose again on a technical knockout.

That's the way Liston lost his crown to Muhammad Ali Clay at Miami Beach last Feb. 25 on a seventh round TKO. Sonny's left shoulder was allegedly in such pain he could not come out for the seventh round.

Bauer Voted Top Manager

Orioles' Skipper Leads UPI Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hank Bauer, whose dynamic leadership was a vital factor in the rise of the Baltimore Orioles to pennant contention, was named the American League manager of the year Tuesday by the United Press International.

The 42-year-old former New York Yankee star was voted the honor by 10 of the 20 writers who formed the 1964 UPI board of baseball experts. Manager Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox received eight votes and Yogi Berra, former manager of the Yankees was given two.

The managers thus finished in the voting in the inverse order that their teams finished in the American League race. The Yankees won the pennant, of course, with the White Sox second and the Orioles third.

The Yankees and White Sox were expected to be strong contenders, but the Orioles were considered a question mark in pre-season calculations and Bauer himself said he would be more than happy to bring the team home third. The Orioles were fourth in the 1963 race—18½ games out of first place.

Ford Undergoes Arm Operation

HOUSTON (UPI)—New York Yankee pitcher Whitey Ford underwent a two-hour operation Monday to clear a blood flow obstruction in his left arm. He emerged in "excellent" condition and should pitch again before long, doctors said.

Ford was in a post-operative recovery room after the surgery and will be transferred to his own room at St. Luke's Hospital Tuesday. He will be well enough for visitors later this week, doctors predicted, and probably will return to New York in a week.

He can pitch again in the spring if all goes well and "should have many more good baseball seasons," Dr. Denton Cooley said.

Diagnosis of Ford's trouble with his pitching arm showed some thrombosis or obstruction of the axillary artery of the left shoulder. Doctors said Ford's pulse in the left hand and arm was weak and during cool days of the baseball season he had some discomfort in the forearm and cold hands.

The surgery removed some nerves that serve the shoulder, to ease blood flow.

Notre Dame Survives Wave Of Upsets To Retain Top Ranking

Alabama Takes Second Place, Arkansas 3rd

Lead Of Irish Cut To 13 Points; Ohio State Drops To 7th

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Notre Dame's Fighting Irish survived a wave of upsets to hold the top ranking and Alabama bucked the tide, too, to gain second place. But Ohio State and four other college football teams among last week's elite lost ground in the latest Associated Press poll.

Georgia Tech, Louisiana State, Florida and Purdue joined the Buckeyes in the tumble. Ohio State dropped from second to seventh. Georgia Tech fell from seventh to 10th. Florida and Purdue dropped out of the first 10 and were replaced by Michigan and Oregon State.

Lead By 13 Points

Unbeaten Notre Dame's first place margin was reduced considerably, from 36 points to 13. The Irish collected 25 votes for the top spot and 380 points this week after edging Pittsburgh 17-15 for their seventh straight triumph.

Alabama advanced one notch on the strength of a 17-9 conquest of LSU. The Tide picked up 11 first place votes and 367 points in the balloting by 41 writers and broadcasters. Points were awarded on a basis of 10 for a first place vote, 9 for second, etc.

Arkansas Is Third

Arkansas and Nebraska, each with an 8-0 record, also advanced one place. The Razorbacks climbed to third with 334 points, including three first place votes. They turned back Rice 21-0 while Nebraska, now No. 4, defeated Kansas 14-7 and moved to fourth.

Texas tripped Baylor 20-14 and went from sixth to fifth. Michigan's Wolverines zoomed to sixth by disposing of Illinois. The Top Ten teams with first place votes in parentheses and points:

Arfons Delays Try For Record

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (UPI) — Walt Arfons' plans to upset his brother's world land speed record of 536 miles per hour will be delayed until Wednesday.

Arfons announced Monday that special tires for the "Wingfoot Express" will not arrive in time for Tuesday's planned trial runs, but were expected by early Wednesday.

The racing car owner said he planned for preliminary runs at sunup Wednesday, and then a crack at the record and an attempt to surpass the amazing 600 MPH mark if the "Express" runs well.

Dean Chance Is Runaway Winner Of Cy Young Award

Angels' Ace Scored 20 Wins, 11 Shutouts And Had 1.65 ERA

BOSTON (UPI) — Dean Chance, the one-man pitching staff who almost personally lifted the Los Angeles Angels into the American League's first division, Monday was a runaway winner of the 1964 Cy Young award as the major league's most valuable pitcher.

Chance, involved in more close games than any pitcher in the last 31 years, collected 17 of the 20 votes cast by a special committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Results of the annual balloting were announced by BWA Secretary Hy Hurwitz.

The 23-year-old right-hander, who had a 20-9 record and led both major leagues in shutouts with 11, learned of his victory at his Wooster, Ohio, home after returning from film work in Hollywood and a series of personal appearances.

Larry Jackson of the Chicago Cubs, the major league's top winner with a 24-11 record, won two votes while the other went to 1963 selection Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers for his 19-5 record.

Chance, who won a record-setting five 1-0 games and lost four by the same score during the 1964 season, was not surprised by his selection.

Someone told me I had won three weeks ago," he said before learning that the ballots had not been counted.

Chance was the ninth winner of the award presented by Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick. He joins American Leaguers Whitey Ford and Bob Turley of the Yankees and Earl Wynn of the White Sox and National Leaguers Koufax, Don Drysdale, Vern Law, Warren Spahn and Don Newcombe.

"If I had a vote," Frick said, "it would have gone to Chance. I saw him pitch in the All-Star game and also against the Yankees. He's one of the great pitchers," the Commissioner said.

Chance was most impressive in that All-Star appearance at Shea Stadium, shutting out the National Leaguers on just two hits over the first three innings.

His five victories by a 1-0 score matched a major league record shared by five hurlers and last accomplished by Carl Hubbell in 1933.

The owner of a 1.65 earned-run average, Chance topped the American League in complete games with 15 while working 278 innings, walking 86 and striking out 207.

Los Angeles helpful
"I'm real happy about this honor," he said. "Pitching in Los Angeles has been helpful as we get cool weather in August and September. It's much easier than in most cities when it's very hot at that time."

Chance said the Baltimore Orioles were his toughest opponent in 1964, beating him three times. He also cited Al Kaline as being the toughest batter he faced.

Chance, once known as Bo Belinsky's traveling companion during Bo's brief career, posted his best organized baseball record. He was 0-2 with the Angels in 1961, 14-10 in 1962 and 13-18 in 1963.

BEST PITCHER REWARDED—Los Angeles Angels pitcher Dean Chance, whose earned run average was the lowest this season among starters in either league, was named Cy Young Award winner Monday as the best pitcher of 1964. Gun Bow Is Pronounced Ready For International

Will Oppose Kelso, Six Foreign Rivals At Laurel Tomorrow

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Gun Bow received an A-plus in his final examination Monday.

Then trainer Eddie Naylor pronounced the fleet American-owned 4-year-old ready for the supreme test in which he will again clash with Kelso, four-time horse of the year, and six hand-picked foreign rivals in the 13th running of the $150,000 Washington, D.C., International at Laurel.

$90,000 To Winner

The 1 1/4-mile race will be run Wednesday over Laurel's rocky grass course with $90,000 awaiting the winner. Post time is 3:45 p.m., est.

The weatherman promises warm and dry air for the next two days with little likelihood of any moisture to soften up the grass course which has been sprayed to make it look green.

Gun Bow, leading contender to supplant Kelso as the American champion, had his third schooling session Monday at the Newmarket tape barrier which will replace the enclosed starting gate used in this country.

Walter Blum, the 4-year-old colt's regular jockey, was in the saddle. When starter Eddie Blind released the tape, the son of Gun Shot-Ribbons and Bows was away like a bullet leaving a high-powered rifle.

Then the Gendey Farm speedster went on to work one-half mile in 49 seconds for his first good performance since being introduced to the Newmarket tape 10 days ago. He pulled up as Naylor made no effort to conceal a broad smile.

Kelso Works Out

Meantime, trainer Carl Hanford sent Mrs. Richard S. duPont's Kelso out for a long gallop with an exercise boy in the saddle.

Kelso, who 10 days ago became the world's leading money winner with a bank account of $1,803,362 has finished second in all three of his starts in the International.

Neither Naylor nor Hanford would disclose the tactics they plan in Wednesday's race. But each indicated he figures the classic grass course event will be a two-horse affair between the American representatives.

Joe Bollino wound up the campaign with a 1-2-2 record.

Score by periods:

Laurel: 12 8 6-25
Beal: 12 8 6-25
Touchdowns: LaSalle-Tommy Clay (4 yard sneak); Hillbrecht (30-yard sweep and 30-yard pass from Clay); Lowery (30-yard run). Beal-Joe Bollino (3-yard run).

Point after touchdowns: LaSalle-Danny Kerr.

MANCHESTER, Eng. (UPI) — Chip Johnson, a 24-year-old heavyweight from Miami, Fla., scored a technical knockout over Britain's Jim Cooper Monday night in the third round of their scheduled 10-rounder at the free trade hall.

Cooper, twin brother of British heavyweight champion Henry Cooper, was dropped three times in the round before referee Jack Lord stepped in to save the Briton from further punishment.

Cooper was out on his feet and his face was a mask of blood from a cut below his left eye.

Tressel, the acting president since the death of President James M. Dickey, and the other officials will be elected at the 84th annual meeting of tennis governing body in Colorado Springs, Colo., Feb. 6, 1965.

Fort Hill JV Gridders Edge Allegany, 7-6

Davis' Conversion Margin Of Victory

Coach Clem Dawson's Fort Hill gridders defeated Allegany in the annual junior varsity football game yesterday by the score of 7-6.

Fullback Ron Davis' conversion after he scored the Fort Hill (d) in the opening on a 4-yard run, was the margin of victory.

Faulconer went over from the three for the Allegany score in the second period but the Little Campers' kick for the point was wide.

The victory gave Fort Hill a season record of 3-1-3.

Davis and Gary Hare were Fort Hill's offensive stars while Sam Buzzard and "Sonny" King excelled on defense for Fort Hill. Rusty Kunis of Fort Hill had a 40-yard average on three punts.

Langman and Beyer were outstanding on defense and offense, respectively, for Allegany.

Fort Hill racked up 16 first downs to 13 for the losers. The victors amassed 174 yards running against Allegany's 102 yards overland. Fort Hill was set back 60 yards on penalties and Allegany lost 50 yards.

Score by periods:

Fort Hill: 7 0 0-7
Allegany: 6 0 0-6
Touchdowns: Fort Hill—Ron Davis (4 yard run). Allegany—Paulcener (3-yard run).

Point after touchdowns: Fort Hill—Ron Davis (run).

LaSalle Beats Beall Jayvees

Win Final Game Of Season, 25-6

LaSalle High School's Jayvees concluded their football season with a victory yesterday when they downed Beall High School's junior varsity at Frostburg by the score of 25-6.

LaSalle jumped off to a 13-0 lead in the first period when Tommy Clay scored on a one-yard sneak, Jim Hillbrecht went 30 yards to paydirt and Danny Kerr scored the extra point.

A 35-yard pass play executed by Clay and Hillbrecht produced LaSalle's third TD in the third quarter and in the final stanza. Gary Neus blocked a punt and George Lowery scooped up the ball and dashed 20 yards into the end zone.

Joe Bollino went off tackle nine yards for Beall's six-pointer in the last period.

LaSalle wound up the campaign with a 1-2-2 record.

Score by periods:

LaSalle: 12 8 6-25
Beal: 12 8 6-25
Touchdowns: LaSalle—Tommy Clay (4 yard sneak); Hillbrecht (30-yard sweep and 30-yard pass from Clay); Lowery (30-yard run). Beal—Joe Bollino (3-yard run).

Giardello Defends His Title Dec. 14

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joey Giardello's attorney said Monday the middleweight champion will defend his title Dec. 14 in Philadelphia's Convention Hall against Hurricane Carter.

Atty. Michael Del Collo said the fight is definite but both boxers are awaiting word on a possible closed circuit television deal that would sweeten the financial terms.

The bout originally was scheduled for Oct. 23 in Las Vegas but was canceled when the promoters couldn't ante up the $55,000 guarantee.

Opening lead: Ace of ♥ swing amounting to nearly 100 points hinged on West's choice of an opening lead. Instant South's four spade contract in today's hand.

The auction was fiercely contested. North's jump raise to three spades with three trumps worthy of note. Partner is surmised to have a good suit in his vulnerable overcall.

North has considerable taking potential in the suits as well as the void in trumps.

South's sacrifice bid of four hearts was a calculated risk, based on the assumption that there was extremely short in trumps. Observe that East and South can make four hearts in a bit more robust, the chances at four spades would be slight indeed. West doubled the bidding subsided.

West opened the ace of hearts, and declarer proceeded to set a merry pace. Ruffed in dummy, crossed to the ace of diamonds, trumped another heart.

king and queen of diamonds were cashed on which South disposed of his two clubs. club ruff provided access to closed hand, so that declarer could trump a third heart.

A high diamond was led when East ruffed with the 10 of spades. South discarded his last heart. The defense subsequently scored two tricks; however, declarer chalked up his doubled contract for a 790 point profit on deal.

West's defensive strategy revealed that he had not much attention to the auction. With both sides bidding aggressively, it should have been obvious to West that the option held a strongly distributional fit, inasmuch as spades were marked with a minority of the high cards. In order to inhibit the development of a profitable cross-ruff, therefore, it is suggested that West defend the ace of spades.

Had he taken the opportunity to inspect the terrain for his future course would have been clarified. If, for example, he now elects to make a play for partner, East will be in to draw a second round of trumps. A heart shift forces the last spade out of dummy while South's lone ace of diamonds blocks access to North's suit, and declarer is obliged to play the balance of the suit from his own hand. South loses, in all, two spades, two hearts, and two clubs for a stinging 1,100 point setback.

Two Children Struck By Autos Die

Lonaconing Girl, Bedford Boy Killed

A seven-year-old Lonaconing girl and a five-year-old Bedford boy were killed in separate pedestrian accidents within five minutes of each other yesterday afternoon.

Lola Jane Clupp of Detmold Street, Lonaconing, died in Miners Hospital, Frostburg, about an hour and 20 minutes after being hit by an auto on Maryland Route 36 near Valley High School at 3:10 p.m.

Five-year-old Richard Pinkston of RD 4, Bedford, was pronounced dead on arrival at Bedford County Memorial Hospital after being struck by a car on Pennsylvania Route 30 about a mile east of Bedford at 3:05 p.m.

Tic. James F. Powers said the Clupp girl, who sustained internal injuries, was walking south on Route 36 near her home with her back to southbound traffic.

The trooper said the driver of car, Urban W. Wiland, 74, of RD 1, Lonaconing, was traveling south, had rounded a sharp curve and hit the girl after he failed to see her walking along the road.

Pennsylvania authorities said the Pinkston boy was running along Route 30 and darted into the front of an auto being operated by Mrs. Mildred Fickes, 46, of RD 4, Bedford, who was traveling west.

Police said a car which was in front of the Fickes car had passed the lad, who ran out into the path of the woman driver.

The boy was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital and was reported to have sustained a crushed skull and chest. The accident is being investigated by police.

The Clupp girl, a native of Lonaconing, was a daughter of Mrs. Frances (Pattison) Clupp and the late Alex Clupp.

Besides her mother, she is survived by two sisters, Eleanor and Frances Clupp and a brother, Gibson Clupp, all at home.

The body is at the Eichhorn Funeral Home, where friends will be received today from 7 to 9 p.m.

A service will be conducted at the funeral home tomorrow at 2 p.m. in charge of Rev. Charles Fussell. Interment will be in Laurel Hill Cemetery.

County Board Rejects Pleas For Variances

Commercial Plans Draw Opposition

Applications for variances to permit commercial operations in residential zones near Westernport and at Cresaptown have both been rejected by the Allegheny County Zoning Board of Appeals, it was announced yesterday.

Hearings on the two applications were conducted October 30 at the Court House by the three-man board composed of Dr. Benedict Skitarellic, Wilbur Johnson and W. William Yoder.

The Westernport area application came from Ernest B. Miller, who sought a variance to construct and operate an automobile repair shop on Stony Run Road northeast of Westernport.

Three persons living in the Horse Rock Hill area spoke out at the hearing in opposition to the Miller request. George R. Failing, Horace H. Richards and Mrs. Maxine Murphy contended that Stony Run Road, which leads from Bruce High School toward the Horse Rock development is steep, narrow and is a school bus route which already is hazardous.

Also rejected by the zoning appeals was not being in the public interest was the application of Martin Cuff for a variance to enable him to construct and operate a produce market at the intersection of Warrior Drive and Winchester Road in Cresaptown.

Opposition to Mr. Cuff's request came at the October 30 hearing from Joseph J. Dorsey, resident maintenance engineer for the State Roads Commission. Mr. Cuff said at the hearing that he wanted to build a 10 by 16 foot stand for the seasonal sale of fruit. Mr. Dorsey pointed out to the zoning board that the SRC had acquired a wide right-of-way at the intersection so motorists coming from Warrior Drive onto Winchester Road would have a clear view in both directions.

Jury Returns $390 Verdict In First Trial

Insurance Policy Dispute Involved

An Allegheny County Circuit Court jury of eight men and four women, completing the first civil trial of the October term of court, yesterday afternoon awarded Hugh Samuel Friend, 215 Virginia Avenue, a $390 verdict in a dispute over a hospitalization insurance policy.

Mr. Friend, who was represented by Edward J. Ryan, had filed suit against the United Insurance Company of America, which has offices in the Liberty Trust Building. Thomas N. Berry was attorney for the defendant company.

Two insurance policies admitted in evidence yesterday showed that Mr. Friend had obtained two policies from the company March 11, 1963. Testimony showed that the policies had lapsed April 29, 1963, although the plaintiff did not make his final payment until May 14 of last year.

The plaintiff was a patient in Sacred Heart Hospital from April 2 to April 6, 1963, and then was confined in Memorial Hospital from May 10 to May 13. Associate Judge Harold E. Naughton instructed the jury that the plaintiff could not collect for his Memorial Hospital stay because the policy had lapsed by that time.

Defense attorneys centered around the question as to whether Mr. Friend, who is a painter, had a pre-existing condition at the time he obtained the policies last year.

Only three witnesses were heard. They included the plaintiff, Dr. Walter N. Himmeler, who had treated him for a kidney condition while at Sacred Heart Hospital; and William D. Grove, local manager for the United Insurance Company.

Norman F. Geatz Jr. was foreman of the jury which deliberated about 40 minutes before returning its verdict.

Inquest Set Friday In Farm Fatality

Child Killed When Tractor Overtakes

An inquest into the death of two-year-old Douglas Lee Burgess yesterday in a farm accident at Laureldale, Mineral County, W. Va., is scheduled Friday at 1 p.m. in Keyser.

The child was killed instantly and his mother, Betty (Hoover) Burgess, was seriously injured shortly before noon yesterday when a farm tractor they were riding and which was operated by the father, Kenneth Burgess, upset while climbing a steep hill. The child was pinned under the vehicle. A coroner's jury pronounced him dead at the scene.

The mother was admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital, where she remains in serious condition. She reportedly sustained fractured ribs and possible internal injuries.

State Police said the father, mother and child were riding the tractor up a steep hill to get a load of posts for a fence when the vehicle hit a stump and overturned.

Trooper D. L. Elmore is investigating the accident. Justice of the Peace Thomas Bosley was acting coroner.

Besides his parents, the child is survived by a brother, Donald, and a sister, Donna, at home; his paternal grandfather, Albert Burgess, Laureldale, and the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Hoover, New Creek.

The body is at the Markwood Funeral Home.

LaVale Fire Victims Need Household Items

An appeal has been issued by Allegheny County Chapter, American Red Cross, for donations of usable articles for the victims of the apartment house fire in LaVale Sunday.

Mrs. Sara G. Lindsay, executive secretary, said most of the families were occupying furnished apartments, but lost all their personal items. Clothing is being provided as quickly as possible, especially for those who are attending school or working.

All but three of the families involved in the fire have been contacted, Mrs. Lindsay said. If members of these families are in need of food, shelter or clothing, they may call the chapter office, Pa 2-1760, for whatever assistance they may need.

Total Landscape Project Slated For Thruway

First Phase Is Slated Next Fall

Landscaping authorized by the State Roads Commission for the Cumberland Thruway program will be a tremendous asset to the Queen City, the Garden Club of Cumberland was told last night.

The pledge was made by Charles R. Anderson, chief of the SRC's Landscape Division, during an address at the Woman's Civic Club.

His talk was an attempt to familiarize Cumberland residents with the SRC's plans for landscaping the big project.

Mr. Anderson said the landscaping of the east and south approaches will be designed late next spring, advertised for bids late next summer, and that actual work will be done next fall.

The development, he said, will be for a total or comprehensive landscape development and "not just a few trees and grass plots."

Pledges Good Job To develop the plan, both shade and flowering trees will be used in conjunction with shrubs and cover plants.

He said the theme for the project has not been developed, but he pledged that the design will be desirable and will be drawn to make the best use of all the land available for landscaping.

The object, he said, will be to set off the desirable views and to screen off the less desirable.

In some areas, it will be desirable to create a buffer zone between the highway and adjacent property to cut down on glare, dust and fumes from the highway.

Screening by landscaping also will be provided in some areas "where we want motorists to keep their eyes on the road," he said.

He said it is rare that the division gets a chance to design such a project since virtually all of the major highway landscaping done to date has been on the Interstate Highway System, where the government puts up 90 percent of the money.

He explained that since the Cumberland Thruway is an urban construction program, he was authorized to go ahead by SRC officials who recognized the value planting would add to the area.

In the past, the SRC has contributed to many highway beautification projects on primary roads but on a cooperative basis, by planting trees and shrubs provided by civic-minded clubs.

The treatment which will be planned here, Mr. Anderson said, will be similar to that which is being provided on Interstate highways but will be planned to take advantage of the environmental and topographical conditions found on the Thruway.

The Landscape Division was established by the SRC six years ago, when Mr. Anderson was selected to head the unit. It now includes 12 landscape architects, draftsmen and agronomists and is assigned duties on all major contracts awarded by the SRC.

Earlier yesterday, Mr. Anderson was briefed by John D. Bushby, District 6 engineer, on the Thruway plans. They later made field inspections of each area which is scheduled for beautification.

His address was presented before some 60 members of the Garden Club and their guests.

Mrs. Ronald Roscher, program chairman, and Mrs. Ralph C. Isminger, president, presided at the meeting.

Among the guests was Mr. Bushby, who helped show slides of what the SRC is doing to beautify Interstate highways in Maryland.

Joins SRC Staff

Mr. Anderson, under whose guidance landscaping of Maryland highways has received greater attention than at any time in history, is a native of Perth Amboy, N. J.

He studied at Long Island Agricultural and Technical Institute and at Rutgers University. He also had graduate work and courses with the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

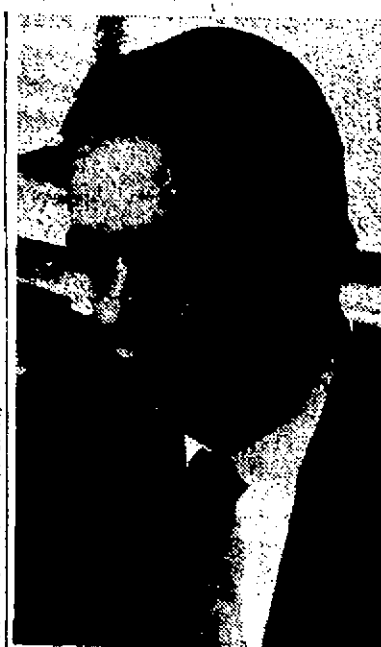

After working for a private landscaping firm in New Jersey, he served from 1952 to 1953 as assistant and landscape construction supervisor for the New Jersey Highway Authority on the construction of Garden State Parkway. From 1955 to 1958, he was consulting landscape architect to the New Jersey Turnpike Authority for the firm of Alfred Reifert, landscape architects, New York City.

Recently he was appointed chairman of the Roadside Development committee of the Highway Research Board.

LaVale Zoning Hearing Tonight

A public hearing will be conducted by the LaVale Zoning Board at the Fire Hall at 7:30 p.m. today on an application to rezone a tract at the southwest corner of U. S. Route 40 and Camp Ground Road from Residential "A" to Commercial "A."

The tract in question is the site of Uncle Lu's Taster Freez. This business has operated as a non-conforming use because it was in operation at the time the LaVale zoning ordinance became effective May 1, 1958. A spokesman for the zoning board indicated that the owner of the tract wants to lease it to an oil company as the location of a new filling station.

City Officials To Confer With FAA Staffers

Mayor Earl D. Chaney and City Engineer C. R. Nuzum plan to go to Washington Thursday to confer with officials of the Federal Aviation Agency in connection with federal aid earmarked for the modernization of the Cumberland Municipal Airport.

The conference was arranged late yesterday afternoon at the request of the FAA and after that agency reported that plans and specifications for the project must be submitted by February 1, 1965.

The City of Cumberland was advised in mid-September that the FAA had allocated $81,000 of matching funds for improvement of the airport.

Earlier, the city asked the FAA for the allocation for work estimated to cost $182,615. Included were $110,365 for resurfacing the main runway; $47,250 for lighting the runway and $3,000 for marking it.

Half of the city's share will be taken from the budget and the other $40,633 can be borrowed from the state through the State Aviation Agency.

Local Postal Employees Receive Presidential Citation

A Presidential citation for outstanding achievement in efficiency and cost reduction through the Post Office Department's Suggestion and Awards program was presented to Cumberland Post Office at its annual Employee Recognition Night Saturday at Shrine Club.

Postmaster William B. Orndorff accepted the surprise citation on from Andrew E. Newton, regional director, on behalf of all the employees of the local post office.

The award is part of a government-wide program to highlight the 10th year of the government employee's incentive awards act and represents President Johnson's continued search for significant economy and efficiency in government, Mr. Newton stated.

During the fiscal year 1964, the Cumberland Post Office received 131 suggestions and adopted 54. Tangible savings benefits for the first year amounted to $1,578.
